When faced with changes in life circumstances such as health, job, family, or church dynamics, it is imperative that you reflect deeply in your heart and mind. You have the choice to either continue with the program or gracefully step out until the extreme circumstances change. It is crucial that you make this decision with confidence and conviction to prioritize your well-being.

A commitment statement between a student and an educational institution or teacher can be a learning contract that outlines an agreement to change the student's behavior or improve their academic performance¹. It can also be a statement that expresses the student's professional commitment to being a lifelong learner, serving others, collaborating with colleagues, reflecting on practice, and seeking leadership opportunities²³.
